Sterling Contractors

Sterling Contractors, Inc., of Shelby Township, MI is a major supplier of mechanical and general services exclusive to the plastics industry. In-house affiliate companies include SCI Electrical, Inc., and SCI Machinery Movers, Inc., and are designed to integrate with Sterling Contractors, Inc. in serving the plastics industry effectively and efficiently. Together with its affiliates or alone, Sterling Contractors, Inc. knows the demands of the industry's timelines and lean manufacturing process, so we design each installation specific to our customer's requirements. Schedules are met or beat and start-ups go smooth.

Sterling Contractors, Inc.'s, dedication to develop and build a company to service the plastics industry came from years of listening to its customer's needs," states Raymond Bianchini. "Our dedication to the industry is ongoing and as the industry changes, so do we."

What we find more and more in the industry are companies faced with new projects or additional work requiring a multitude of changes and upgrades to their existing facilities. In many cases complete new facilities are required. Many companies feel the only options they have are to somehow try to free up there own in-house experts from their current responsibilities to take on the additional project work load, or to hire new personnel to specifically work on these types of projects. We can offer an alternate solution.

Companies wishing to start new or expand existing facilities will receive total single-source services which begin at the initial project development stage, then go on to include complete design and installation, but our service doesn't end at start-up. We also provide emergency service repairs.

Sterling Contractors, Inc., has, over the past twenty-five years, become the leader in providing mechanical installations for the plastics industry. That is our core business and what we are most interested in doing. However, more importantly that that, we realize that the planning and management of any project is key to the success and outcome of the job.
